Hi Lorena,

Thank you for your email. I am confirming that CDPH-10004878 has expired fully. The license expiration date is 3/8/2024; however, we give the licensees 30-days after expiration to pay their fees with a late fee added. The final due date for the licensee to renew would have been 4/8; however, they did not pay to renew; therefore, their license has fully expired.

Thank you,

Good morning Janet and DCC Licensing Division,

It's urgent to obtain a response from DCC Licensing Division if Thinc Cubed failed to renew their manufacturing CPH-10004878 (AM Type 7 - manufacturing volatile solvent extraction) license.

I was on METRC generating reports when I noticed Thinc Cubed was not displaying as an active license. Then I went onto DCC's License Search, and it shows "expired." The business owner had an explosion on November 28, 2023, and he is going through the tenant improvement process. If the owner failed to renew, the City must proceed in a different direction since Thinc Cubed is not licensed as a state approved cannabis operator.

Your immediate attention and assistance are greatly appreciated! Any questions, I can be reached at 760-776-6477 and email is lritchey@palmdesert.gov.
